In the current controvery over civil rights legislation, affirmative action, job discrimination, and quotes, one aspect of the whole matter is overlooked.

caministration of personnel in any situation wi hout report to mace, creed, color, or national origin, however well-intentioned, is businly impossible unless it is done without reference to race, creed, color, or national origin.

Is anybody ready to eliminate the race, creed, color and national origin lines from any personnel form?

You connot have it both ways.

Very truly yours,

D. J. Mundernon
